

GOVERNOR SMALL ON STAND DENIES ANY CONSPIRACY

Boys Hear Confessions Read to the Court

SEEM AMUSED BY ADMISSION OF THE CRIME

Defense Attorney Helps Crowe Read Lengthy Admission Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, July 29.—Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, pleaders of guilt to the kidnapping and murder of 14 year old Robert Franks, today heard read in open court first their denials and then their confessions of the crime.

Benjamin Bachrach, one of the attorneys for the boys helped get in to the record this final stage of the state's presentation of evidence, by relieving Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, of the task of reading the prosecution's transcription of the boys' admissions. Mr. Crowe's voice was worn and after 30 minutes of reading Mr. Bachrach said he was "getting a little hoarse." The state's attorney however, declined to take up the vocal burden at this time.

Grinned at Profanity.

The boys listened with very little change of expression until Mr. Bachrach reached a passage in which Leopold quoted a profane exclamation made to his brother when he learned that his spectacles had been found near the culvert in which he and Loeb had hidden the body of the Franks boy. When this came out in Mr. Bachrach's clear voice, both defendants grinned.

They smiled again when the account reached a colloquy between Leopold and Mr. Crowe in which the latter quizzed the student on the distinction between grammar and rhetoric. Leopold answers here, according to the record, were worth an "A" in a class room.

Defendants Amused.

Other points that amused the defendants included Leopold's "hope" that he was an expert automobile driver and his debate as to whether gin was his favorite beverage.

Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the defense talked with the boys from time to time.

At one point in the reading Leopold's ideas on religion were worked into the record.

"There is no God," he was quoted as saying. "I do not believe in a future life. When I die, I die all over. Of course, that is only an opinion and it can be demonstrated only by dying."

Leopold was busy talking to Mr. Darrow when this occurred and apparently did not hear it.

Mr. Darrow was handed a telegram a few minutes later. Leopold read it over the attorney's shoulder and whispered to Loeb.

The court room was slow in filling today for the sixth day of the trial. Women, as usual, predominated in the court room and 15 minutes before the judge Caverly ascended the bench, virtually every courtroom seat was taken.

Attorney Clarence Darrow and Benjamin Bachrach of the defense and Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, conferred with Judge Caverly when court opened. Samuel Ettelson, the Franks' family lawyer joined them.

Reads Notes on Examination.

Mr. Crowe resumed examination of Robert Allen, expert stenographer from his office. Allen resumed the reading of the questions and answers that the defendants just before they broke down the night of Decoration Day.

The reading resumed with Leopold's account of the "one week alibi," which he and Loeb agreed upon to account for their activities, May 21. As the account reached references to the forest preserve and the swampy lakes south of the city near where Robert Franks' body was found, the state introduced a large diagram of the region.

It was then that Mr. Crowe suggested that he read the transcription of Allen's notes. Mr. Bachrach stood behind the state's attorney, following the reading over the latter's shoulder.

Mr. Crowe read that Leopold had said that he was acquainted with the culvert in which the body of "Bobby" Franks was found. He said he knew there was a drain there, but said he did "not notice it particularly" when at the spot on "birding" trips.

"Passed Over" Culvert.

"I should say I passed right over it," said the stenographer's account of the interview.

Mr. Bachrach read from the state's

Exall, Jr., Hoyle's Racer, Dropped Dead on Track After Heat

Exall, Jr., four-year-old trotter owned by J. W. Hoyle of this city, dropped dead in front of the judge's stand at the Ambury track Friday afternoon after having finished a mile in 2:18. Mr. Hoyle was in the sulky and as the mile was being finished the animal, which was valued at $2,000, stumbled and fell. Hemorrhage was the cause of the sudden death. The animal was being groomed for this season's racing and his owner had anticipated a great future for the trotter which was raised by Mr. Hoyle and had promise of being a great trotter. The day previous, Exall, Jr., had trotted the mile in 2:14. Mr. Hoyle carried no insurance on the animal.

PIONEER DEALER IN AUTOMOBILES SELLS BUSINESS

Joe E. Miller Disposes of Business to Galesburg Man.

Announcement was made this morning of the sale of one of the pioneer automobile agencies in Dixon. Floyd G. Eno of Galesburg having purchased the stock and agency of Joe E. Miller, to take possession August 1. In his retiring from active business Dixon loses not only one of the oldest but one of the most successful automobile dealers. Mr. Miller for several years past has been planning to retire and to take a well deserved rest and vacation.

Joe E. Miller operated the first taxi line in this city and many years ago drove the first auto truck through the streets of Dixon. He has been engaged in the automobile business here for a score of years and has had the agency for the Buick line for 17 years. He has been located in the present building now owned by him for a period of 14 years.

He Built Business.

Mr. Miller established and built up the Buick agency in this locality and to his efforts is attributed its great success. He has also established one of the most complete service stations for cities much larger than Dixon in Illinois.

In retiring from active business, Mr. Miller will retain the funeral service equipment, which is another branch of the business that he has built up to a point of perfection.

The new owner has taken over and will handle exclusively, the Buick line of cars. Mr. Eno grew up in the Buick company where he became service manager at the factory at Flint, Mich. He was transferred to the branch plant at Buffalo, N. Y., where he served as sales manager for several years. In all he has been connected with the Buick line for a period of 14 years. Of late years he has been associated with his brother-in-law as manager of the Buick agency at Galesburg, where he has made his home for the past seven years. Mr. Eno will move his family to Dixon as soon as he can find a residence.

In taking over the Buick agency here, Mr. Eno will make some minor changes in the garage building. Oscar Johnson, who has been associated with Mr. Miller for the past 13 years will remain in charge of the service and repair departments.

Many Cities Prohibit Following Fire Truck

The practice of following the fire department in rigs and automobiles and even crowds on foot is being prohibited in a number of Illinois cities by special ordinances. Rockford, Springfield, Peoria, as well as Chicago, have passed ordinances against the old time custom of everybody chasing the fire department to a fire.

One such ordinance states that: "Upon the approach of any vehicle or apparatus of the bureau of fire and fire alarm, the driver of any vehicle or siren, the driver of any vehicle other than an ambulance or hospital emergency car shall drive as close to the right curb as possible and shall not follow within 600 feet after said vehicle or apparatus. No vehicle, except by direction of the fire chief shall approach or park within 600 feet of a fire at any time."

State Fire Marshall John Gambler approves these ordinances, and says they help regulate traffic and make the chances 100 per cent better for the fire department to reach the fire without delays.

Stag Picnic for Dixon Elks is Being Arranged

Plans for a stag picnic for members of Dixon lodge, No. 779, B. P. O. Elks were discussed last evening at a meeting of the officers and members of a special committee at the club rooms. A committee to secure a suitable site for such an outing was appointed to report early next week. It is expected that the outing will be held Thursday, Aug. 21, lasting through the afternoon and evening. Special features are being provided in the way of entertainment and it is expected to make the stag this year the largest affair of its kind since the abandonment of the clam bakes.

CHASE FLEEING BRAZIL REBELS INTO INTERIOR

Rehabilitation of Sao Paul Undertaken By Loyal Governor.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Buenos Aires, July 29.—While the remnants of the military forces which revolted at Sao Paulo July 5, were being pursued today into the interior of Brazil by federal troops, Governor Da Campos, once more installed in his state capital, was taking account of the damage it suffered from the three weeks' bombardment, fire and pillage, and at Rio Janeiro, President Bernardes was faced with the problem of effecting a solid restoration of the nation's disturbed unity.

"It is up to us to reorganize Brazil in a manner so that it will be able to press on for all the possibilities of such rebellions through revision of our constitution, or confess the failure of our form of government," President Bernardes is quoted as declaring last night.

The president said he looked upon the Sao Paulo movement coming after the revolt at Rio a year ago, as evidence of the weakness of the laws of Brazil regarding the repression of sedition. The president has also to consider the question of dealing with foreign governments with reference to the damage suffered by the property of their nationals as well as the killing of foreigners during the revolt.

The greatest interest centers in the fate of General Lopez, leader of the revolt, who fled to the interior with his troops yesterday. "For three weeks he ruled Sao Paulo as head of the 'provisional government of the United States of Brazil,' which, with the assistance the rebels hoped, of the states of Parana, Santa Catalina, Rio Grande do Sul, Matto Grosso and Minas Geraes, was to have overthrown the federal government in accordance with a plot conceived many months ago."

The rebel troops fled the city in two small columns, according to official reports, and news of their capture is expected soon.

First Air Mail from Nashville to Chicago Carried This Morning

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, July 29.—(By the Associated Press)—The first air mail from Nashville, Tenn., arrived this morning at 3:30 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time after a flight of 400 miles in 3 hours and 29 minutes.

The experimental flight, which Nashville postal authorities and bankers hope to make a regular service between the Tennessee city and Chicago was made in excellent flying weather without the slightest mishap and in fast time, according to Lieut. Herbert Fox, one of the aviators. Lieut. Fox said:

"We left Black Wood Field at 4 a. m., central standard time. The flying weather could not have been better and the flight was entirely successful in every way."

The aviators carried $500,000 in banking items on which much time is saved by air mail. The Federal Reserve Bank and the American National Bank of Nashville, arranged the experimental flight in cooperation with Postmaster O'Callaghan of Nashville and the 105th Observation Squadron, Tennessee National Guard, to which Lieut. Fox is attached.

The fliers planned to leave Chicago early in the afternoon for the return to Nashville.

"Good Sense of People" is Ground of Hughes' Faith

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Paris, July 29.—"We must believe in the good sense of the peoples," Secretary Hughes replied to an interviewer for the Excelsior who asked him the real reasons for his optimism about the outcome of the inter-allied conference with London.

"The Dawes plan has been approved by all the governments, including the German, as the most practicable, just and reasonable solution of the reparations problem," he added. "It must be applied practically, in a spirit of justice and with rational methods if we intend to emerge from the difficulties of the last five years."

Mr. Hughes refused to be drawn into discussing the terms laid down by the Anglo-American bankers.

Electric Line from Fairdale to Munroe Center is Sought

(Telegraph Special Service.)
Springfield, July 29.—The Illinois Northern Utilities company of Dixon filed a petition with the Illinois commerce commission today asking for a certificate of convenience and necessity to construct an electric transmission line from Munroe Center, Ogle county, to Fairdale, DeKalb county, and to operate in Fairdale.

Nachusa Farmer Given Parole That He May Go Home and Harvest Crop

Ed Thurm of Nachusa township, arrested in a raid March 21, was liberated from the county jail the fourth time since his arrest late yesterday afternoon. Thurm was sentenced to serve six months for violation of the state prohibition act on a plea of guilty on the date of his arrest and has served but 56 days of the 180 according to the jail records. His latest and fourth parole grants him liberty until September 20th when he is to return and serve the remainder of his sentence. The grounds for the parole permitted him to return to his home and harvest his crops, it was said.

Lorado Taft to Erect Another Indian Statue

Lorado Taft, Chicago's famous sculptor and designer of the heroic statue of Black Hawk at Oregon, is to build another great Indian statue, choosing Chief Shabbona as his subject. Geneva is making a strong bid for the statue, as Shabbona roamed that part of the state for years and made his camp for a time in a grove on the east bank of the Fox river near Geneva. Mr. Taft has not decided where to erect the statue, but desires to put it in a proper historical setting. The Oregon statue was built while Mr. Taft was spending parts of his summers in the art colony there. It is not a portrait statue of Black Hawk, but a heroic Indian figure typifying the great chieftain.

Forty Applicants Wrote Teachers' Examinations

A total of 40 applicants for teachers' certificates wrote the examinations at the office of the County Superintendent L. W. Miller, Friday and Saturday of last week. This number is not considered above normal, but the reason given for not having a much larger registration, is the fact that many who would have written the examinations are attending the summer sessions of teacher's training college.

$12,000,000 in State's Bonds for Sale, Aug. 15

Springfield, Ill., July 28.—Twelve million dollars' worth of Illinois bonds will be sold at auction in the office of Governor Small August 15. TWO NEW SCHOOL BUILDINGS UNDER CONSTRUCTION NOW

Lee Co. School System Benefitted By Erection of Buildings.

Two new modern school buildings are under construction in Lee county to be completed and ready for the opening of the school year the first of September. At Paw Paw, work on the $13,000 addition and improvement to the high school is progressing rapidly. The foundations have been completed and work on the brick walls is now under way. When complete, the Paw Paw school will be one of the foremost in the county from a sanitary standpoint for arrangement and for the comfort of students.

The basement will accommodate a modern chemical laboratory with large rooms on the first floor for the accommodation of the seventh and eighth grades. On the second floor, a large assembly room, equipped with modern movable furniture will fill a long felt want.

The Palmer school in district 41, Marion township, which was destroyed by fire last winter, is being replaced by a modern rural building at an approximate expenditure of $2,000. The new building will be a modern one-story structure equipped with the latest type of rural school furnishings.

Merchants and Bankers Warned Against Crooks

Merchants and bankers are being warned to be on the lookout for passers of bogus money orders. A bulletin to postmasters states that the money order forms No. 32,801 to 32,900 which were stolen from Valer, Illinois, July 11, are the money order forms that are being passed.

The man and woman are reported to have passed $10 and $25 money orders in Illinois and Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and are believed to be still operating in the state. The man is described as being from 30 to 35 years of age, 5 feet and 10 inches tall, weighs from 160 to 175 pounds, has dark hair and eyes, the hair thin on top and is a "smooth and pleasant talker." Nearly everyone takes him for a traveling salesman. The woman is described as being from 25 to 30 years old, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches tall, weighs 125 to 130, long dark hair and dark eyes and wears black or dark gowns.

One Hour Parking Limit for Autos in Moline Now

Moline, Ill.—Motorists going to Moline will find it profitable to obey the one-hour parking limit ordinance now being rigidly enforced by the Moline city police. Strict enforcement of the ruling was announced a short time ago by Chief Ben DeJaeger, and patrolmen as well as traffic officers have been instructed to see that car owners abide by the rule.

Four or five motorists are summoned daily to the station by the little red tags, where they are obliged to deposit $1 and costs with the magistrate for their failure to obey the one-hour parking limit ordinance.

V. F. W. of Dixon and Sterling Held Picnic Which Proved Success

Sterling.—The plan of holding the annual picnic of the Veterans of Foreign Wars as a combination picnic for both the Sterling and Dixon posts proved to be a big success. Representatives from the Burt E. Brown Post left the Sterling post's club rooms early Sunday and the delegation from Horace F. Ort Post of Dixon reached the grounds at Brown's Beach about the same time the Sterling vets arrived there.

The afternoon was spent in playing ball, bathing and enjoying a pleasant rest along the river bank. Additional picknickers kept arriving all afternoon long until about 200 were on hand when the picnic dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. A refreshment stand did a big business throughout the afternoon and evening and the crowd was swelled by many people from Sterling and Dixon, who went to the beach to enjoy the occasion. It was dark before the last picknickers departed for their home.

The picnic was voted the best ever enjoyed by Burt E. Brown post and being the first picnic of the new Dixon post, it set a precedent that can scarcely be maintained by that post alone, so the sentiment of all concerned appeared to be favorable for holding their annual picnics together in the future.

MacReady Will Make a New Effort for Altitude

Dayton, O., July 29.—Lieut. John A. Ready may soon make another effort to regain the world airplane altitude record. It was indicated at McCook field today.

Orders have come for the equipping of all pursuit planes with superchargers, which permit flying at heights of more than 20,000 feet, and in addition, a new Curtiss plane, like that with which Lieut. Russell Maughan made his trans-continental flight is being equipped with the mechanism.

All the planes will be tried out in altitude work and, if the Curtiss ship demonstrates the climbing ability, MacReady will seek to break the altitude record now held by Sadi LeCointe of France.

SURPRISES ALL BY TAKING THE STAND IN CASE

Explains His Efforts Protect State; Did Not Make a Cent

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill., July 29.—While denying every allegation against him as state treasurer, Governor Small stood in his own behalf, the reopening of the master chancery hearings in the "civil suit" in rapid order he denied that he had ever engaged in a conspiracy with Vernon Curtis to use state money for his own gain or that he had profited from state money and cleared that he had accounted every cent of state money intrusted to him as state treasurer.

The calling of the Governor to stand by Werner W. Schroeder, fence attorney, came as a surprise to those in the court room. In the face of repeated objections and motions strike out testimony Schroeder questioned the governor about the history of various businesses in which he engaged.

Tells of All Interests

The interrogation included questions regarding the Governor's connection with the nursery business, real estate developments in West Kankakee and the Grant Park bank.

When asked: "Have you fully accounted for all state moneys entrusted to your keeping during your term as state treasurer as required by law?" the Governor replied: "I have accounted for every penny."

Throughout the questioning Governor leaned back at ease and answers to the questions directed him were characterized by a delicate and precise manner. He recalled dates, names and places carefully.

Denies Any Conspiracy.
Asked if he had ever "engaged in a conspiracy with Ed or Vernon Curtis in the collection and retention of interest on state monies," the Governor replied "no."

"Have you ever profited from interest on state money," Schroeder asked. The Governor replied "no."

The hearings today are taking place in the circuit court room where original indictments were returned against the Governor in 1921. It was the first time that the Governor had taken the stand in his own defense in the present prosecution.

Explains "Parkers' Notes".
The defense attorneys then went to the question of the famous "parkers' notes." Governor Small explained that these notes were given as collateral for loans made by the Gr. deposited. As state treasurer, he said Park Bank, in which state money was held, was called upon to examine collateral and endorse it. Knowing that state money was in the bank, explained, he made doubly sure that the state was protected, by insuring the collateral for $2,000,000. The same policy was pronounced and identified by the Governor.

Today's Market Report

New High Prices for Season Reached Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, July 29.—On fresh waves of buying today corn, rye and provisions as well as hogs reached new high prices for the season. Wheat, however, made a sharp down turn in value during the early dealings and heavy profit taking sales soon brought about decided setbacks in other grain.

On the bulge May corn reached as high as $1.01 a bushel; Sept. rye reached $1.00; Oct. rye $1.00 and to $1.15, all record breakers so far in 1924.

Favorable weather in Canada and the heavy movement of winter wheat in this country were largely responsible for the downward swing of wheat prices today and for the reversal of the action of corn and of other grain after an early advance. Wheat opening prices which ranged from 34c lower to 3c advance with Sept. 34c to 1.35 and Dec. 1.37 1/4 to 1.40 were followed by many rapid fluctuations that carried the market as a whole about 2c under yesterday's finish.

Corn started unchanged to 1/4c higher, Sept. 1.09 to 1.10 with the buy, however, the weakness of wheat began to tell and the market underwent a sudden fall of about 2c before beginning to rally.

Oats at the beginning ranged from 34c lower to 3c gain, Sept. 5 1/4 to 5 1/2, then a decline of about 1c and the market steadied at a fraction under yesterday's finish.

Provisions made a jump of 50c in some cases. Subsequent, heavy profit taking also checked rallies in the wheat market, despite an advance in Liverpool and notwithstanding considerable export business in United States wheat. Rains in the Canadian north west were the chief bearish factor. The close was nervous 1/4 to 1/2c net, Sept. 1.32 1/4 to 1.33 and Dec. 1.35 1/4 to 1.36.

Warm weather favorable for corn growth tended later to ease the corn market somewhat, but renewed buying lifted prices again at the last. The close was unsettled at same as yesterday's finish to 1/4c higher, Sept. .09 1/4 to .09 1/2 and Dec. .09 1/4 to .09 1/2.

All have terrible moments. And pity ourselves, and have sighs. And wonder just how we can stand it. And do just a bit at our eyes. And, so, we are miserable, often, until, with ourselves forgot. We think of some act that will soften Some other poor sufferer's lot.

Shower Honored Mrs. C. Fritts

Last Thursday afternoon Mrs. Harry Kester of Sterling, gave a shower in honor of Mrs. Clarence Fritts of Dixon (nee Fria Black of Nelson). The afternoon was spent in social chat and music. Later in the afternoon Miss Ruth Johnson, also of Sterling, presented Mrs. Fritts with the gifts. After they were opened and Mrs. Fritts had thanked each one, the hostess served dainty refreshments of ice cream and cake. All departed wishing Mrs. Fritts many happy years of married life.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—Use Both Sides.

When using long-handled brushes and brooms try to use both sides evenly if you want them to wear the long as possible time.

Wrong Side Out.
Hang colored clothes wrong side out when you dry them, and hang them where there is a good current of air so they may dry quickly.

Put in Jar.
If all the pickles are not used when the jar is opened, put them in a covered glass jar and pour olive oil over them and they will last for several days.

Use Mild Soap.
Use very mild soap when cleaning white woodwork, as strong soap turns it yellow in a short time.

HAVE RETURNED FROM GRAND HAVEN, MICH.

Mr. and Mrs. David Boos have returned from Grand Haven, Mich., where they were guests for several days of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Gylleck, formerly of this city.

TO ENTERTAIN WITH BREAKFAST WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Frank Edwards and Mrs. Geo. Dixon will entertain with a breakfast Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Edwards, honoring the guest of Mrs. W. C. Durkes, Mrs. George Hew-son, and Mrs. Mary Chapin of Rock Falls, the latter a sister of the groom.

The bride wore a pretty gown of brown tulle with a tan hat. Her flowers were a corsage bouquet of rose buds.

Friday evening forty relatives and friends were guests at a reception given in their honor at the home of the bride's parents. The evening was spent socially and refreshments were served.

The young couple have gone on a short wedding trip, after which they will make their home for the present with the groom's parents on their farm. Both young people are well and favorably known in the vicinity in which they live, and have the congratulations and best wishes of a large circle of friends.

Held Surprise for Gertrude Leach

Last Saturday afternoon a very pleasant surprise party was held at the East Jordan parsonage in honor of the fourteenth birthday anniversary of Gertrude Leach, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Leach.

The party was planned by the girls of Mrs. Jesse Sivits Sunday School class, and the entire affair was one of much pleasure to all.

A 5 o'clock picnic supper was served on the lawn. The following were present: Laverne Williams, Marie Livingston, Lenore Sivits, Leola Sivits, Rosa Schell, Mildred Cross, Kathryn Haak, Vera Baker, Mabel Sulouff, Beatrice Hutt and Bernice Rackow of Chicago; and Carolyn Clark of Massillon, Ohio.

LARGE HATS RESTORED TO FAVOR FOR SUMMER WEAR

By MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer

The large hat has staged a real comeback this summer.

Just make a tour of the smartest roof gardens and restaurants and you will find the debutantes and dowagers alike basking under wide-brimmed models.

Nine out of ten are of black milan or leghorn with a bow of velvet or satin ribbon that weighs it down on one side and gives the wearer a chance to peek out coyly from the other.

But there are novelties such as the one photographed. There is the combination of straw and fur that Paris likes very much this summer that is most unusual.

Or the checkerboard model with the upturned brim that is bound to make the wearer look at least five years younger than she really is.

For festive occasions such as the wedding or garden party, there is the leghorn picture hat lined with pink taffeta under the brim and ruched and banded with it on the outer. And on one side fastened beneath a bunch of old-fashioned roses are streamers of blue velvet ribbon. This hat is warranted to bring on the proposals.

RECALLS GALENA AS MAIN CITY OF GREAT TERRITORY

Discovery of Lead in Vicinity Resulted in Big Growth.

Galeña, Ill.—Before gold was discovered in California, or the Klondike rush had started, northwestern Illinois experienced a stampede of miners, which was in many respects comparable to the gold rushes of later days according to Edward L. Burchard, an authority on northwestern history, who has made a study of the origin of the lead mining industry in this district.

Previous to the opening of the lead mines the territory had been devoted almost exclusively to fur trading. The great trading companies that had exploited Canada had exhausted all of the nearby territory to the north of the border and the upper Mississippi valley became the center of fur trading operations. Prairie du Chien, just across the border, was at that time a greater city than Chicago and was the great fur trading center and port in this country.

"When the shiny metal, indispensable for shot and bullets then so much needed by both the new world and the old, was found in quantities in this section miners flocked in from the south and east, from Ireland, Wales, Cornwall, France and even from San Domingo," Mr. Burchard said.

"In an incredibly short time they built up the lead country around Galeña. In ten years Galeña became the leading town of northern Illinois when Chicago was not even dreamed of as a rival. By 1850 it was still a greater wholesale center than Chicago. This was the first Klondike rush, and not until the opening of the California gold mines in 1849 did Galeña decline. At the height of the rush 15 steamboats at a time were seen unloading cargoes at Galeña's wharves, or loading lead and grain for transportation to St. Louis.

"The Washburnes of Minneapolis, James J. Hill of Great Northern fame and the F. H. Smith family of Chicago, all got their foothold in the new country during Galeña's prosperity."

"All of this development took place beyond the rim of society. Galeña was surrounded by at least 2000 hostile Indians, living in their tipis and hunting for fur. They were vindictive over the loss of their hunting grounds and wielded their tomahawks mercilessly until their power was broken in the Black Hawk war."

Fords Collided at Hess Corners: No One Injured

Ford cars belonging to James Webb of Madison, Wis., and Dan Spielman of this city figured in a minor collision near the Hess corners on the Lincoln Highway last evening about 9:30. The Madison car was ditched and slightly damaged, but none of the occupants of either car was injured.

THE TAX RELIEF.

Congress will be forgiven much, because it lowered taxes, though it did it only politically, not scientifically. Its revenue law is unscientific in principle and wrong in many details, but the average taxpayer is not given to close analyses. The law does grant relief to millions of citizens, in their income tax payments—moderate relief this year, in a general cut of 25 percent, and the prospect of a cut too in next year's payments. The "higher brackets" gain little; but the majority are not much concerned about that.

It would have been better, well informed persons may admit, if congress had made a slightly greater reduction on the income taxes on big fortunes, and coupled it with legislation to stop the issuance of tax-exempt securities. That would have brought under taxation again a large volume of wealth now altogether escaping the income tax, and would have poured into productive enterprise again hundreds of millions now buried in public bonds and encouraging public extravagance. Such action is so logical, according to economists, that it must come sooner or later.

In the meantime, there is a noticeable perk-up of business because of the general cheerfulness caused by relieving the small tax burdens of the many. That effect may be more psychological than scientific, but it is an economic fact just the same.

It was suggested by not a few that the income tax should be one in which all incomes could be assessed on the same percentage, as state, city and county taxes are based on a mill rate—the same for both high and low incomes. But the income tax has always been based on supposed ability to pay, which after all is a carrying out of the Christian principle that the strong should help bear the burdens of the weak.

A FRIEND IN FRANCE.

It is pleasant to read the words of Edouard Herriot, new leader of the French government, committing himself to support of the Dawes report, friendly co-operation with America and a balanced budget.

"In all circumstances," he says, "I have rendered homage to the magnificent disinterested aid which the United States extended to France during the war. Recently as a member of the finance commission I have been able to appreciate the aid the United States brought us in bolstering up our national currency.

"If I take direction of affairs I shall ask the American democracy to have the same confidence in me as I have in it. I can be assured in any case that I will practice a sane financial policy founded on rigorous balancing of the budget. I shall furthermore practice a policy of peace on the basis of the experts' report, which I approve completely and without mental reservations."

This sounds sincere. It is what America wants, and presumably what France wants, or should have. It is all the more agreeable to American ears after the sword-rattling and ingo oratory of Premier Poincare and his indifference to American advice and American interests. Herriot talks like a man whom Americans can applaud. He stands for European prosperity and international peace.

SPEEDING SAVES LITTLE TIME.

A moral which can be drawn from the exhaustive test made by a large American taxi-cab company to prove that speeding through crowded city streets, while highly dangerous, rarely saves time, is the fact which almost all observant motorists must have half convinced themselves of many times, namely, that the general rate of motor traffic in such conditions is an extraordinarily efficient speed regulator, which refuses to be disregarded. In this particular instance, it was shown that, of 1000 test trips, the 500 which were conducted at an attempted reckless speed, with the drivers taking advantage of every trick known to the craft, effected only an insignificant saving of time over the 500 made at a rate of less than twenty miles an hour, in which every traffic regulation and driving courtesy were carefully observed. Surely such a demonstration ought to convince the average driver once and for all that it is useless to attempt to "beat the traffic" along crowded city thoroughfares.—Christian Science Monitor.

MOPPING UP.

A large industry in Georgia is being sued by the United States for almost $7,000,000 for unpaid income and excess profits taxes for 1919 and a 50 percent penalty for the alleged making of false and fraudulent returns. It is charged that the concern paid only $1,548,000 taxes in that year, whereas it should have paid $6,104,000. This is but one of the mopping up operations which the administration has been forced to conduct since it took control of the government. With the federal machine of 1919 it is easy to see how one of the key industries of the democratic state of Georgia escaped with but a fraction of its dues to the treasury. It is also easy to explain the bitter animosity of the senate democrats toward the department of justice which is trying to recover some of those debts through the courts.

SIDE-LINE.

From Argentina comes word that teachers there are not allowed to work full-time. They can have classes morning or afternoon, but not both. This gives them opportunity to devote half the day to outside jobs in business, trades or professions. So its not uncommon to find a doctor or lawyer teaching a daily class.

This divided-activity system might be welcomed by teachers in America—which says its brain instructors outrageously low. But that's the natural reaction of a race devoting nine-tenths of its time and money to the body, only a tenth to the intellect.

INVESTMENTS.

The French people have 5000 million dollars invested in foreign countries, not counting Russian loans which have vanished in smoke. Their income from these sources is 250 millions a year. That's a return of five per cent, which should enlighten suckers who think they can get something for nothing. A Frenchman's wisdom in investments amounts to genius.

"Howdy, do!" she said when she saw Nancy and Nick

"Did you find out anything?" asked Mister Zip. "Did you find out why so many people are getting into Happy Go Lucky Park for nothing?"

The Twins shook their heads. "Not yet," said Nick. "We went to see Mrs. Field Mouse in the basement of Maple Tree Plaza, and she says she gives Flop money for taking home washings. She says he spends it all coming to your park and she doesn't care because she knows he's safe here."

"All right," said the fairman. "Maybe you'd better go and see Mrs. Mole next."

"We were just going to," said Nancy.

So away went the Twins to Mrs. Mole's house under the hazel bush. Mrs. Mole was at home and just doing up the lunch dishes.

"Tap, tap, tap!" went Nick on her front door.

Mrs. Mole dried her hands and answered it. "I do declare," she remarked to herself, "I never put my hands into a batch of biscuit dough or dish water or something like that that somebody doesn't come. Who do you s'pose it is?"

She put on her spectacles (for she was very near sighted) and opened the door.

"Howdy, do!" she said when she saw Nancy and Nick.

"How do you do?" said the Twins. "Is Mikey at home?"

"No," said Mrs. Mole. "He isn't. He's at Happy Go Lucky Park. He's there nearly all the time since it opened."

"Has he any money?" asked Nick.

"Money!" exclaimed Mrs. Mole. "I should say so. Why, how could he get in without money, I'd like to know? The worst of it is just because he's so big for his age, Mister Zip charges him full fare. And he's two weeks younger than his cousin, who always gets in for half."

"It's kind of you to let him go every day," said Nancy.

"Oh, I couldn't afford it," said Mrs. Mole. "Only my brother always sends Mikey a dollar on his birthday. I keep it for him and give him 10 cents a day to spend. That's where he gets his money."

"Well, we will see him some time again," said Nick. "Goodbye!"

So back to Happy Go Lucky Park went the Twins to tell Mister Zip that Mikey Mole got 10 cents a day to spend.

"Hopping rain toads!" exclaimed Mister Zip. "That's funny! I sort of thought—"

Suddenly he stopped. "How much money did you say Flop Field Mouse got every day?"

"Ten cents for carrying washings," said Nancy.

"And how much money did you say Mikey Mole got?"

"Ten cents out of his birthday money!"

The fairman pointed to two little figures in front of the peanut stand, each buying a bag of peanuts. And each was carrying a brand new balloon.

"Then tell me how they have any money left to spend, will you?" said he.

"That's right," said Nick. "If each of them only has 10 cents to get in, how can they come every day and still have 10 cents to spend?"

"There must be something wrong," declared the fairman.

"We'll find out what it is," said Nancy.

"I wish you would," said Mister Zip with a worried look. "If things keep on like this, I never, never, never will make my fortune."

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES. COTT TO LESLIE PRES. COTT. COTT OF THE STREET DRAWER, CONTINUED

I was silent for a moment, little Marquise, I could not excuse my own sister, neither could I let poor Karl be blamed for something I knew he could not do.

"But, Jack, you must remember that Karl is now engaged to my sister and the preparations for the wedding are all made—the invitations are out, everything—"

"That is just it. Whitney has found he could not go through with it, consequently he sent me this letter."

"I do not, I can not believe it, Jack."

"Well you will believe it when I take those damned beads and go over and twist them around his throat and choke the confession out of him."

I could see little Marquise, that we were not getting anywhere, so I simply said:

"Jack, do you realize that tomorrow night we're going to have a party in celebration of our third anniversary, and we are at this moment in the midst of the worst quarrel we have ever had?"

"We've got to settle this thing some way, or at least call a truce until after then."

Jack turned toward the window. He had been standing the entire time since he came into my room.

"Of course you can do what ever you please, Leslie, but I shan't be here for that celebration. I'm taking those pearls back to Whitney as I told you I would do—tonight. I shall expect you to give me that six thousand dollars I sent you, and with what I have in the bank which I intended to invest very shortly in a splendid profit making concern, I think I will be able to make up to him the amount of money he has spent. At least I can give him my note for thirty days for the remainder."

"Suppose when you told me about little Jack, when you told me that the child I loved as my own, was your child and its mother was Paula Perier, suppose when you told me this I had said: 'All right, you do what you please. Today is my day for washing our dirty linen in public and I am going to proceed to do it.'"

"If you insist upon doing this thing you have threatened, John Prescott, I will recall all the invitations, either by telephone or wire, this afternoon."

YANKEES PROVED SUPERIORITY IN WINS FROM SOX

Went Back Into the Lead at Expense of Evers' Players.

Associated Press Leased Wire
 After the grudge against the Sox for cheating them out of the game and American League, the Yankees visited upon their conquerors and led into first place. Detroit matters along by dropping its straight to Philadelphia and Washington retired to third position result of a defeat by Cleveland.

Yankees' first win over Chicago was due more to the White Sox active hitting than the Yankees' victory, but the Huggins left no in the minds of their opponents to the positive quality of offensive in the night cap, they clinched in the first inning by chasing 10 runs across the plate and ultimately won by 12-10. The hectic opening session Babe doubled and hit his 31st home run in the seventh inning with 4 lead, Detroit frittered away advantage and Philadelphia floundered on the long end of a 7-4 in the 11th chucker.

Cleveland Looked Good.
 In the decisive factor in Cleveland's 2-1 decision over Washington, Mogridge and Russell (twirl) but Cleveland's outscored both trying the count in the ninth, a Robertson's double, St. Louis 10, ten round battle to Boston 10.

Manager Sisler of the Browns intended to protest the game. The umpire Owens violated the rule in ordering Rego to precede Hillan in the batting order.

Chicago was too sports-people to win while New York was 5, the Giants today still lead the National League by seven games. Sox men were blanked 6-0 by St. Louis of the Cardinals.

When their ninth inning rally fell short, the Cubs were noised by Philadelphia 12-11. Each of the teams used four pitchers.

Cincinnati cut down Brooklyn's lead in the fight for fourth place by adding the Robins 3-2.

Braves took their daily rub at this time at the hands of the Cubs by a count of 5-2.

ATURE GAME BOOKED FOR FRIDAY'S GAME

Whiskered Gang Play Sterling at 5:45 p.m. Friday.

The local baseball fans have the opportunity of seeing good games in a row this week. The first will be a most unusual one, a twilight game to be played at 5:45 o'clock Friday evening.

The Sterling Legion will play the famous House of David ball club, the first appearance of the House of David team in this vicinity.

House of David team is from Harbor, Michigan, where the House of David institution is located. Every player on the team has hair and a flowing beard. It seems that the ball might get stuck up in the whiskers, but such is the case, as those who have on long flowing beards took them to the clubhouse.

House of David team has won such clubs as the Cermaks, the independent team, St. Michael's team and others. They have a team.

After Faust, the 19 year old second baseman of the House of David is rated as a genuine sensation. He has attracted the attention of local managers in organized baseball. It is reported that George Stalder offered the youngster a sizeable contract but Faust refused to sign with his brothers, or cut his flowing beard to join the international club.

Tally is another star on the team. Having annexed the title of "Babe Ruth" by his consistent heavy hitting, Cookie Hanna, the brilliant first sacker, has a playing great ball and is rated as the best first sacker ever on a team of David team.

Leading every game, Tally, Art, Erbitz and Faust stage a comedy which is said to be a sure cure for blues.

is name has been booked for p. m. in order to give the merchants, factory employees and people in the country and nearby a chance to see the game. A crowd will no doubt be on to see the "Bearded Beauties."

WE EXPORT TWICE AS MUCH TOBACCO AS IS SHIPPED IN

"Habit" Continues Fast Growth in Foreign Countries.

The "tobacco habit" of the foreign world continues to grow, at least as relates to its demand for the product of the United States. The quantity of leaf tobacco exported from the United States in the fiscal year just ended, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, 545 million pounds against 445 million in the year preceding the war and 335 million in 1900, is greater than at any time save in the exceptional years, 1919 and 1920.

World appreciation of the quality of American tobacco is also shown by the fact that the prices at which leaf tobacco was exported in the fiscal year 1924 averaged 30c per pound against only 12c per pound in the year preceding the war. And evidently the world tobacco users want American tobacco irrespective of price, for they have sent us practically 200 million dollars for our raw and manufactured tobacco in the past year and 2 1/2 billion dollars in the past 25 years. This nearly 200 million dollars worth of tobacco exported in the fiscal year ending with June included 166 million dollars worth of leaf tobacco and 22 million dollars of cigarettes, to say nothing of the smoking and chewing tobacco in various forms, and the stems, trimmings and scraps which amounted to 40 million pounds in the fiscal year 1924 against less than 8 million one year earlier.

Where does it go? To the whole world but especially to Europe and Asia. To Great Britain alone the leaf exports of the fiscal year 1924 are 85 million dollars in value, though it is probable that a considerable part of it passes on from Great Britain to other countries and especially to the British colonies. The next largest buyer of our leaf tobacco is China which took 16 million dollars worth, Australia 10 million dollars, Germany 8 million, Netherlands 7 million, and Japan 6 million dollars worth in the fiscal year 1924. Of the 22 million dollars worth of cigarettes exported in the year just ended, 16 million dollars worth went to China alone and most of the remainder to other of the orient countries. The latest figures of the Department of Commerce show the details of distribution of tobacco in its various forms show that the leaf tobacco exports of 1922 went to practically 80 countries and colonies, cigarettes to about the same number, chewing tobacco to 60 countries, cigars to 37, and snuff to 15 countries, Europe, Canada, the Central American States, West Indies, China, Siberia, Australia and the Philippine Islands.

While the growth of the tobacco plant has extended from America, its original home, to all continents and principal countries, the United States is still the largest single producer, its annual production being usually about 1 1/2 billion pounds, or of a world total of 4 billion, India ranking next with approximately a billion, China a half billion, and Europe as a whole nearly a billion pounds.

The fact that we are the world's largest producer and exporter of tobacco does not prove that we supply all the requirements of our own people. In fact, we are large importers of three distinct classes, cigar tobacco coming chiefly from Cuba and Porto Rico, wrapper tobacco chiefly from the Dutch East Indies, and certain types of cigarette tobacco coming chiefly from southern Europe and Asia Minor. Of the 24 million dollars worth of cigar leaf tobacco from foreign countries in the 11 months ending with May 1924 nearly 20 million was from Cuba; of the 18 million dollars worth of cigar wrappers nearly all was from the Dutch East Indies.

FATHER CONLEY IS IN CHARGE OF NEW FREEPORT PARISH

Journal Standard Gives New Priest There Complimentary Notice.

Concerning the transfer of Rev. Father Charles F. Conley of Walton to Freeport, mention of which was made in The Telegraph some time ago, the Freeport Journal Standard of Saturday evening said:

Rev. Father Charles F. Conley the new priest assigned a few weeks ago by Bishop P. J. Muldoon to be pastor of St. Mary's Church of Freeport, succeeding the late Father T. F. Leydon, has arrived and taken charge of his new field of labor. To many he is already personally known and the Catholic clergy of the city speaks very highly of him and congratulates St. Mary's congregation on his appointment here.

Rev. Charles F. Conley was born in Huntley, Ill., in 1881. His early education was obtained in the schools of his home town and at Northwestern Academy. In 1899, he entered Loyola University, Chicago, where he was graduated from the Liberal Arts Department four years later. Going to Rome, Italy, he became a student in the American College and, after six years of study there he was ordained to the priesthood in 1909. Returning to America and to this diocese, his first assignment was as assistant pastor of St. Mary's church in Elgin, Ill.

Four years later he was appointed first resident pastor of the newly established church at Walton, and for the past eleven years had labored in that community.

Father Conley is recognized as one of Rockford diocese, most brilliant clergymen. He is a master of several languages, socially popular and in the cause of religion or for the good of humanity he has been an ardent worker. The young people of the St. Mary's church will find in him a kind friend and adviser and with the cooperation of his able assistant, the Rev. Father Joseph Egan, he is certain to administer the parish in a capable and satisfactory way.

The parish at Walton, Ill., thrived under his charge; he established a well organized social center, which was used by clubs and societies. He provided an athletic field for outdoor sports, which was used by the entire community as a play ground. He was an athlete himself and always interested in athletics. He made a study of the needs of the parishioners in a rural community and his advice was solicited not only in spiritual affairs, but by residents of the community in agricultural matters.

Building of Machine Now
 Aim of LaFollette Backers
 By Associated Press Leased Wire
 Washington, July 29.—The setting up of a political machine for the LaFollette-Wheeler independent presidential campaign is to be completed, under present plans of its sponsors, before the senators embark upon an extensive speaking program. Although this may delay the start of the speech making until September, leaders in the movement expressed the opinion today that the plan would enable the candidates to make more effective use of their efforts.

Senator LaFollette has put off his contemplated return to Madison, Wis. his home, in order to remain in Washington in closer touch with the functioning of the new organization.

JAIL CAN'T SILENCE MAGEE DEFIES JUDGE

Las Vegas, N. M.—Carl C. Magee is staking his freedom and his future on a fight.
 He has been sent to jail and to the verge of bankruptcy, but he fights on to:
 Overthrow the political gang that rules San Miguel county.
 Establish the freedom of the press in New Mexico.

He has carried the title of the "fighting editor in America." He was given this title when he defied the powers of Judge David J. Leahy, boss of the "Kingdom of San Miguel." Ever since Magee started publishing his paper in Albuquerque he attacked the judge as corrupt. Once he was sentenced to 18 months at hard labor and to pay a fine of $4000. He was pardoned by Governor Hinkle before he went to prison.

This did not deter him. He had declared his war and he fought on.

Defies Court.
 He was summoned again. Under this threat, he wrote:

"Leahy's 'court' isn't a court. It is a slaughter house for the blind goddess of justice."

"Abandon hope all ye who enter here," could be put over the entrance with great propriety I doubt whether a case, civil or criminal, has been decided there on its merits in 10 years.

"If the time ever comes that I can get Leahy on an equal footing with me in an honest court, I'll take him to the worst cleaning one man ever received. About once in two weeks I have accused him of being a corrupt judge in the hope that I could inveigle him into suing me for libel. Then I'd have him down on the floor of the court with someone else on the bench and a jury in the box."

So he was sentenced to jail again. Even in his cell, writing on a pad of copy paper on the bottom of a chair, he continued his editorial attack upon Judge Leahy and his associates.

Forced to Sell.
 Magee came to New Mexico in 1920 from Tulsa, Okla., because of his wife's illness. He started his first paper and his fight at the same time.

His bankers called in loans when he exposed a deal in which banks profited at the state's loss.

He was forced to sell his paper. He bought another paper, and backed by the Scripps-Howard organization, continued the battle.

Magee, a rangy man with steel-gray eyes, is little worried about his own fate.

When he walked into court to face Judge Leahy the last time, he was asked if he had any reason to offer.

American, and his whole heart is in the welfare of his country. He was chairman of the War Loan, Red Cross, K. of C., Y. M. C. A., and Salvation Army drives in his township. He was also active member of the county council of defense.

A farewell dinner was tendered him last Sunday in Walton, at which time he was presented with a purse by his parishioners and other friends.

Soviet Russia Now Going in for Radio Broadcasting
 Moscow, July 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Soviet Russia will join the United States and other countries in broadcasting news, speeches and entertainment programs to the public, the council of commissars is expected shortly to issue a decree permitting the installation of receiving sets in the homes at a moderate price.

The government will not only allow radio amateurs to construct their own receiving sets but will undertake itself to manufacture amateur apparatus for Russia's millions. This will require an entirely new industry and the government hopes it will stimulate the development of electrical science and provide work for the state factories running at reduced capacity.

Engineers, electricians and the general public are invited to submit models of home receiving sets.

Up to the present the government has confined the broadcasting of official speeches and similar matter to the various provincial soviets, branches of the Rosta News Service and communist party organizations.

There are forty sending stations in Russia, eight of which have a radius of 2,000 miles or more each.

Wife of Head of Decatur Bank Took Her Own Life
 Decatur, Ill., July 29.—Mrs. Nanie Conrad, 52, wife of John W. Conrad, president of the First National Bank of Decatur, near here, was found dead hanging in a grape arbor at 5 o'clock this morning. Her husband made the discovery. She had been ill a long time and was practically blind from cataracts, which operations failed to relieve. She was a large land owner of Shelby county. Mrs. Conrad leaves four children.

The first street lamps were lighted 300 years ago.

CARL C. MAGEE

The judge stuttered so surprised was he at this challenge to himself. He asked Magee to repeat.

Then he found him guilty on another count of contempt.

New York—Any statement that mentions "poor fish" is good for a laugh any place in New York, except the Aquarium, in Battery Park.

The chamber maids who care for the fish on display take their work seriously and resent all fish jokes.

The Aquarium, by the way, does a big business during the summer. Admission is free. The visitors, for the most part, are tourists, those intensely interested in fishology from a scientific standpoint, and park bench-warmers who have nothing else to do.

A California sea lion has held the center attraction bowl at the Aquarium for 15 years. On many occasions I have seen the lion, and never once have I seen him resting. He just keeps ploughing through the water of his circular tank. The fish fed him are cleaned and dressed.

The shark sucker, a small fish that clings to the side of the man-eating sharks by suction and friction, is the laziest of fishes. They will not swim a stroke, making the shark pull them along.

Funny fish are the angels, who are made up like black-face comedians and circus clowns. After one glimpse at them you'll be convinced that although "fish may not perspire," as a vaudeville song goes, they do have circuses.

The most conceited fish evidently are the red and blue parrot fish. They have a mirror in their tank and they spend most of their time adjusting their fins before it.

There may be many "poor fish" in New York, but none of them are at the Aquarium. Those fish have hot and cold running water in their hot rooms, equipped with electric lights. Their meals are served promptly. They don't do a bit of work and are never teased with hooks.

Mike, misnamed tabby cat favorite of the Brooklyn postoffice, is dead, a victim of poisoned cakes strewn about for Mike's aged enemies, mice.

Six years ago the cat appeared at the postoffice and displayed signs of remaining. A thoughtless postal clerk named the cat "Mike."

Tomato will not produce cancer, contrary to a common belief.

OLSON OBTAINED MANY SENTENCES IN CHICAGO DIST.

U. S. Prosecutor Tells of Accomplishments of His Office.

Chicago, July 28.—Imprisonment sentences totalling over 500 years have been obtained in the last 18 months by his office Edwin A. Olson, United States Attorney, told the University of Michigan Alumni of Chicago at the Hamilton Club today. He said:

"The crying need of the hour is the enforcement of law. It must be either that or anarchy. The World Court or the price of wheat is small stuff compared to the importance of honest and impartial enforcement of law. Crooked politics has too much to say, not only in the making of our laws but in enforcing them and if this government of ours ever goes to smash it will be on that rock you will find the splinters. I wish, however, to assure you that there is one place where politics doesn't operate and that is in the District Attorney's office in the Federal building. Justice over there is now becoming swift and sure."

Real Estate Padlocked
 "On the first of July I finished my first eighteen months as District Attorney. I have compiled a few figures covering that period in question. We disposed of 5000 civil and criminal cases—more than were disposed of in any previous five years. We collected in fines, penalties and forfeitures over a million dollars, which is more money than was collected by the same office during the preceding 18 years. Imprisonment in penitentiaries and jails amounted to over 500 years, and in that list is included every known criminal from the outlaw brewer to the mail robber. More than 25 millions of dollars worth of real estate has been padlocked for a year, from the basement dive in the river wards to the five story hotel in the loop. We have closed 18 breweries in a year. More breweries than have been closed in the entire United States, outside of this district, during the five years of the Volstead act. We have emptied millions of dollars worth of beer into the sewers and we are destroying brewery equipment wherever possible. A lot of these brewers are now brewing perspiration behind prison bars and more are on the way. We have convicted over 2000 illegal purveyors of poisons, from the West Madison street bum to the Rolls Royce operator on the gold coast. Ninety-nine out of every hundred are convicted. That's our record."

Don't Wear Blinders
 That is because we don't wear blinders or political hobbles in the District Attorney's office. We are enforcing the law as it is written against everybody alike, from beggars to millionaires. Crimes against the government have decreased fully one-third during the past year and it will go down another one-third when our dockets are cleared, which we hope to accomplish in another six months.

"I have only 15 assistants, exactly the same number as were employed in that office ten years ago and the work now is more than 500 per cent greater. During the past 18 months this district has led every other in the United States in the disposition of business. The Northern District of Illinois now stands in a class by itself. There is no secret about how that happened. We just squeezed politics out of law enforcement."

Would a private enterprise. "Unless the American people arise in their might and demand that business principles be substituted for political expediency in government, it will not be long before there will not be any business left to worry about for anybody."

Candidate Davis Spending on Last Day of Vacation
 By Associated Press Leased Wire
 Dark Harbor, Isleboro, Maine, July 29.—With only 24 hours of his Maine vacation remaining, J. W. Davis devoted much of his time today finishing up his address which he is to deliver at Clarksburg, Va., August 11, accepting the democratic presidential nomination.

His calendar was clear of engagements and his only recreation was a golf match. Accompanied by Mrs. Davis and his friend, Frank L. Polk, the nominee will leave tomorrow afternoon for New York.

Again at this desk in his headquarters, Mr. Davis will plunge immediately into the task of clearing away many problems awaiting solution since he has been here in the Penobscot Bay island resting.

After one week in New York the nominee will proceed to his old home at Clarksburg.

Council to Receive Bids on Peoria Ave. Pavement
 The regular meeting of the city council will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the city hall. At this time bids for the paving of Peoria avenue from Tenth street south to the city limits will be received. Several contractors were in Dixon yesterday looking over the site of the proposed improvement before submitting their bids.

No Mercy for Women or Workers In THE NEXT WAR!

THE fatal day of April 7, 1937, dawned bright and clear. No hint of tragedy was in the air, no hint of the awfulness that was to come.

The sun rose over the seaport. People hurried to their daily tasks. Then the hum and din and clatter of myriad activities—the city awake, active, a thing alive.

Suddenly a different humming—monotonous sound, throbbing on the eardrums. A great, black cloud appeared in the sky—swept nearer, nearer. Shadow fell over the city. People gazed skyward in terror—then came the crash.

A terrific explosion rent the air—then another and another, seeming without end. Buildings rocked and fell as thousands of tons of TNT were dropped from the automatically controlled air fleet of the invaders.

The scene of the razing of the seaport beggars description. Sub-basements, where people had rushed like rats to their holes, were literally torn from the ground. Crowded subways, teeming with humanity, were crushed like eggshells. Sky-scrapers crumpled like houses built of cards. Through the flames mangled bodies could be seen tossed high in air by the bursting explosive.

RAZED IN HOUR

But the destruction was not yet complete. In less than an hour's time the city had been razed to the ground, wiped out. But several million of the inhabitants were still alive. Some had managed to burrow far enough under the surface of the ground to escape the general slaughter. Others, by freak of fate, had been missed by the crashing walls and hurtling masses of stone, brick and masonry.

Better had they died at first.

The explosions stopped, and, for the first time, the screams of men, women and children in their death throes could be heard. Then, slowly, the screams died away, blotted out. A blanket of death gas had been thrown over what was once a great seaport.

Colorless, imperceptible to the naked eye, yet heavier than air, the killing gas settled to the ground, sought its way into the very bowels of the earth, filtered into every crack and cranny of the city's network of underground rooms and passageways, snuffed out each flickering spark of life.

That was the end. The hot, poisonous breath of death had visited every living thing. Where the smoking stood was a seared and blackened mass of land, devoid of life.

With the destruction of the city an accomplished fact, the war lords of the invaders proceeded to put into practice that excellent precept, "Strike while the iron is hot."

The blockade had showed them the value of fast action. The invaders' war fleet, consisting mostly of giant, high-powered aeroplane carriers, guarded by armored submarines, had set sail and crossed the water in inconceivably short time, appearing without warning off the harbor before daybreak.

No official declaration of war had been made. Any warn the enemy of your intentions?

NO INVADERS HARMED

The first fleet of planes had been dispatched immediately, each plane carrying a 10-ton bomb of TNT. Some few had been picked off by defense anti-aircraft guns, but this made little difference to the general plan of campaign and had not even resulted in loss of life to the invaders. No men were on board the bombing planes. They were controlled by wireless from guide-planes, flying far out of range, their pilots kept not only alive but comfortable in the recently discovered oxygen masks which had so revolutionized high altitude flying.

The bombing fleet was followed by a fleet of death gas planes which acted as "moppers-up," spraying their breath of death over the city with gas guns and dropping gas bombs.

Cruisers and battleships, which steamed out of the harbor to fight off the invaders, had been quickly sunk by torpedo-planes, automatically controlled from the carriers, capable of discharging their engines of destruction with mathematical accuracy.

All in all, the destruction of the city had been no less than simple. The next step, then, was to "follow through" with the rest of the country.

To accomplish this the war lords of the invaders landed their trained army which, with its supplies and impediments, had followed the war fleet on a fleet of giant convoys.

Embarkation was an easy matter. But from that point on the going became harder.

Stunned by the disaster, the defenders at first seemed paralyzed. Then they rallied and mobilization was carried on with unheard of speed throughout the country. The small standing army, augmented by volunteers, was drawn up in battle line along near the coast, prepared to make one desperate effort to check the advance of the military masses of the enemy.

INVADERS IN TANKS

No effort will be made here to recount all the details of the engagement that followed. But the main features of the titanic struggle will probably stand out for all time in the war history of the world.

The invaders' troops rolled forward in their gas-proof, bomb-proof tanks, traveling at a speed of about 30 miles an hour, covered by a barrage laid down by guns 75 miles in the rear and by automatically controlled aircraft overhead.

The advance seemed irresistible.

Suddenly there was a flash. The ground around the invaders' tanks was torn to shreds—erupted convulsively into the air. They came down as tangled masses of flesh and metal. The entire area had been mined—and the mines set off by ultra-violet rays.

Simultaneously the first squadron of invaders' bombing planes tumbled to the ground—struck by the new killing ray.

Its advance checked, the army of the invaders fell back. Then came trench warfare.

WAR ON NONCOMBATANTS

Followed almost a replica of the World War of 1914-18, but with this difference: In the World War the Allied and German armies concentrated for the most part on each other. Relatively small damage was done to noncombatants and cities, with the exception of those in the actual war zone. But in the War of 1937 the invaders' war lords realized that the defenders, with their principal cities destroyed, their administrative and industrial centers wiped out, would be helpless. They attempted, therefore, only to hold their battle-line intact, and centered their real offensive on the invaded country's centers of population.

The slaughter along the front was, of course, terrific. With fast, bomb-proof tanks, able to navigate on either land or water; death gas sinking into the best covered trenches and killing all it touched; automatically controlled bombing planes which, by use of mechanical sighting devices, could hit the mark 99 times out of every 100; killing rays, which withered whatever they came in contact with; electrically operated machine-guns, capable of discharging several hundred shots a minute; chemical guns, burning all before them—with all these devices of destruction, plus the bayonet and artillery of former wars, men were killed like flies.

All prisoners were immediately executed. When this was protested the invaders' war lords replied: "What else can we do with them? Let them go—and have them return to fight us? Keep them and feed them—when all our food must be brought from home at great expense and trouble? Ridiculous! Efficiency demands that they die—and this is an efficient war."

CITIES WIPED OUT

An efficient war, yes, and a frightful one. But the war along the actual battle-front was, after all, a side issue, a detail. As stated before, the centers of population and industry—cities, munitions plants, railroad centers—were the invaders' main objectives.

For the women, children and old men were as much of the fighting machine as were the soldiers. Manning factories, growing food were as vital to the army in war as the guns were.

Each night a fleet of bombing planes was sent out to destroy some city. The destruction was carried on in each case as it had been when the seaport was blotted out.

With this going on the defenders could not last long. Able to check the invaders on her first line of defense, her reserves were rapidly vanishing.

WAR EXPERTS SAY:

The next war will produce more deadly gases than hitherto invented.

Airplanes will be able to carry death on long flights directed from the ground.

Tanks will be amphibious battle-ships, almost invulnerable.

All battleships will be submersible.

Disease germs may be a weapon.

War will be made on noncombatants, women and children as freely as upon troops.

ing from behind. The ground was figuratively crumbling from under her army's feet.

The bombing of the capital was the death blow. It was accomplished between sunset and midnight one month after the start of the war. One week later a forced peace had been signed—and the defenders were a tributary of the invaders.

THE foregoing all sounds weird, fanciful, like a dream. Yet it is a dream that may some day come true.

It is hard to develop any new war machine dur-handicap America managed to develop a gas which seemed well-nigh perfect—Lewisite.

The armistice was declared before Lewisite gas was ever put into actual combat use, and since that time its development has gone on unhampered. It is now considered by experts to be the ideal death gas—the big killing factor of the next war.

Lewisite has the three necessary qualities for absolute effectiveness which the first chlorine gas—and later mustard and tear gas—lacked. It is invisible, its presence unbetrayed by a telltale color in the air. It is heavier than air, sinking into trenches, dugouts and sub-cellars. It kills by contact with any part of the body, penetrating the skin and poisoning the system, unchecked by gas masks which keep it only out of the lungs.

Also it has a terrific spread. It is estimated that a dozen bombs of Lewisite could be made to kill every living thing in a city of more than a million population.

PLANES DEVELOPING

When the armistice was signed the Germans were laying plans to demolish Paris with a great fleet of dirigibles, and the Allies were planning to do the same thing to Berlin with aeroplanes. And that it was possible to plan the destruction of a city 400 miles from the nearest airbase—shows how rapidly the science of aeronautics had advanced.

Since the armistice it has been developing with the same speed. In 1914 battle planes could only carry bombs the size of a hand-grenade; in 1918 they were carrying bombs containing explosive charges weighing one ton; in recent experiments conducted by the War Department at Aberdeen, Md., 4000-pound bombs were dropped from an altitude of 4000 feet.

Another development in aeronautics is the mechanically controlled plane. The Martin Company is now perfecting a plane which can take off and perform any desired evolution in the air with no pilot in it.

Then there are the tanks.

The British sprung them as a surprise at the Somme in 1916. They were slow, cumbersome affairs, armed only with machine guns and capable of a speed of only four or five miles an hour.

TANKS IN WATER

The tanks of today are capable of traveling on either land or water. They can float over rivers just as easily as they can climb hill and plow through swamp land. They are practically unstoppable, except by high explosive. They are capable of a speed of about 20 miles an hour. They are armed with standard field pieces.

The tanks of the future, military experts believe, will be able to travel 30 or 40 miles an hour over any kind of ground. There is no limit to the size they can be built. They may be constructed as veritable land battleships, mounting guns of any desired large caliber. No ordinary shell can pierce their armor, and, most important of all, the future will be submersible, that the submarine of tomorrow will be a gigantic affair, fast as a cruiser and mounting the guns of a dreadnaught.

Consider the havoc wrought by the old German U-boats—then use imagination!

DISEASE GERMS

There is one possible—even probable—development of the next war so horrid and repulsive that even military men avoid speaking of it. It is the use of disease germs.

It is a simple matter to cultivate deadly bacilli in the laboratory. It would be just as simple, by use of aircraft, to spread these bacilli, imprisoned in glass tubes, through the enemy's country.

Does this sound ridiculous—too inhumane to be thought of? At the close of the World War the laboratories at Nuremberg were accurately reported to be breeding disease germs to spread through France and England—and the British were loading air-bombs with anthrax bacilli for reprisal!

The use of various rays is just coming into its own. Niel Assen, Norwegian inventor, employed by France during the World War, claims to have perfected a system by which an entire frontier can be mined with high explosives and these explosives set off from any distance by radio electricity.

War Department officials have already perfected the setting off of explosives by ultra-violet rays.

KILLS ANIMALS

So far no one has perfected the killing ray. But experiments conducted by H. Grindell Matthews, will kill small animals within ten minutes, not five

SYNOPSIS
Sir Oliver Tresillian, renowned for his exploits on the Spanish Main, is betrothed to Rosamund Godolphin, but the marriage is opposed by Rosamund's brother, Peter, who takes every opportunity to manifest his antagonism. A stinging insult finally provokes Oliver, in the hearing of witnesses, to threaten to kill him, but the thought of Rosamund deters him. That night, however, Oliver's young half-brother, Lionel, accomplishes what Oliver would have liked to do, and is himself wounded in the encounter. Peter, Lionel relates, in a fit of jealous anger over a woman, had affronted him and drawn his sword; he had killed merely in self-defense. Terror-stricken, he extracts a promise from his brother to keep the affair a secret. Suspicion fastens upon Oliver, who unwaveringly protests his innocence to Rosamund and her guardian, Sir John Killigrew. They tell him a trail of blood, undoubtedly that of the murderer, has been found to lead from the dead body to his doorway.

He returned home with hell in his heart. He knew not what the future might hold in store for him; but such was his resentment against Rosamund that there was no room in his bosom for despair. They should not hang him. He would fight them tooth and claw, and yet Lionel should not suffer. He would take care of that. And then the thought of Lionel changed his mood a little. How easily could he have shattered their accusation, how easily have brought her to her proud knees imploring pardon of him! By a word he could have done it, yet he feared lest that word must jeopardize his brother.

In the calm, still watches of that night as he lay sleepless upon his bed and saw things without heat, there crept a change into his mental attitude. He reviewed all the evidence that had led her to her conclusions, and he was forced to confess that she was in some measure justified of them.

It was a heavy cross to bear. Yet for Lionel's sake he must bear it with what fortitude he could. Lionel must not be sacrificed to his egoism for a deed that in Lionel he could not account other than justified. He was base indeed did he so much as contemplate such a way of escape as that.

But if he did not contemplate it, Lionel did, and went in terror during those days, a terror that kept him from sleep and so fostered the fever in him that on the second day after that grim affair he had the look of a ghost, hollow-eyed and gaunt. Sir Oliver remonstrated with him, and in such terms as to put heart into him again. Moreover, there was other news that day to allay his terrors: the justices at Truro had been informed of the event and the accusation that was made; but they had refused point-blank to take action in the matter. The reason of it was that one of them was that same Master Anthony Baine who had witnessed the affront offered Sir Oliver. He declared that whatever had happened to Master Godolphin as a consequence was no more than he deserved, no more than he had brought upon himself, and he gave it as his decision that his conscience as a man of honor would not permit him to issue any warrant to the constable.

Sir Oliver received this news from that other witness, the parson, who himself had suffered such rudeness at Godolphin's hands, and who, man of the Gospel and of peace though he was, entirely supported the justice's decision—or so he declared.

Sir Oliver thanked him, protesting that it was kind in him and in Master Baine to take such a view, but for the rest vowing that he had had no hand in the affair, however much appearances might point to him.

When, however, it came to his knowledge two days later that the whole countryside was in a ferment against Master Baine as a consequence of the attitude he had taken up, Sir Oliver summoned the parson and straightway rode with him to the justice's house at Truro, there to afford certain evidence which he had withheld from Rosamund and Sir John Killigrew.

"Master Baine," he said when the three of them were closeted in that gentleman's library, "I have heard of the just and gallant pronouncement you have made, and I am come to thank you and to express my admiration of your courage."

Master Baine bowed gravely. He was a man whom Nature had made grave.

"But since I would not that any evil consequences might attend your action, I am come to lay proof before you that you have acted more rightly even than you think, and that I am not the slayer."

"You are not?" ejaculated Master Baine in amazement.

"Oh, I assure you I use no subterfuge with you, as you shall judge. I have proof to show you, as I say; and I am come to do so now before time might render it impossible. I do not desire it to be made public just yet, Master Baine; but I wish you to draw up some such document as could satisfy the courts at any future time should this matter be taken further, as well it may."

"I assure you, Sir Oliver, that had you killed him after what happened I could not hold you guilty of having done more than punish a boorish and arrogant offender."

"I know, sir. But it was not so. One of the pieces of evidence against me—indeed the chief item—is that from Godolphin's body to my door there was a trail of blood."

The other two grew tensely interested. The parson watched him with unblinking eyes.

"Now it follows logically, I think, inevitably indeed, that the murderer must have been wounded in the encounter. The blood could not possibly have been the victim's, therefore it must have been the slayer's. That the slayer was wounded indeed we know, since there was blood upon Godolphin's sword. Now Master Baine, and you, Sir Andrew, shall be witnesses that there is upon my body not so much as a scratch of recent date. I will strip me here as naked as when first I had the mischance

Suspenders In The Spotlight

Unhonored and unsung, suspenders have for decades performed their admirable, yes, indispensable service of upholding a man's dignity and, ahem!, other things. What has brought them out of their coy, colorless retirement and made them shoulder new responsibilities? Trousers that are wide and high-waisted and trousers without bottom turn-ups. These make a belt far less practical, because, with it, trousers do not hang so well and have a disconcerting trick of creasing untidily over the instep. If a waistcoat be worn, suspenders are essential to trim appearance. When trousers are roomily cut and full-draped, the even support they need all around can only be given by suspenders.

Suspenders used to be one of the least prepossessing articles of dress, resembling a harness-like contraption. The man who wore them was furtively ashamed, bracketing them with nightgowns, hard-boiled shirts, Congress gaiters, detachable cuffs and all the other musty-fusty modes of vanished days and ways. Suspenders have come back for two reasons—the change in the cut of trousers and the fact that they are not simply made to perform a useful purpose, but also styled with color and art.

Suspenders are now procurable in brilliant webbings and often sold in sets to match the colors and patterns of garters, as illustrated here. The designs include college, club, regimental, fraternity and blazer stripes, so that they may be chosen to conform or contrast with suits, shirts, scarfs or even hat-bands, though that's going pretty far. Anyway, they are a glimmer with color and color, now-a-days, is the first word in the Dictionary of Style. For the man who leaves off his waistcoat and puts on a belt, yet needs the secure support that only suspenders give, there are out-of-sight suspenders specially made to be worn under one's shirt. Instead of sliding leather or web ends, these suspenders terminate in metal clasps which engage the inside trousers buttons and the folds of the shirt, thus doing duty unseen and unsuspected. Those who have reached the age when the hairline recedes and the waistline advances will find such suspenders no end useful in hot weather.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, becomes a master crook—praying upon other thieves. Swede Thomassen, a brutal murderer, is killed in Ainsley's apartment by the White Eagle, a notorious international crook. While the police search for Ainsley—or rather for "Robert Stickney"—he is preparing to sail for Australia. In the Trevor dining room Ainsley overhears a distraught young man tell his pretty girl companion that he intends to kill himself. Ainsley finds out that the young man is a thief and that his thievery will be discovered next morning. Acting on a generous impulse, Ainsley offers the young man twenty $500 bills as a gift.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I said that I was a thief, I am," he said. "Tomorrow morning my employer will find ten thousand dollars missing from his cash-box."

I tapped the notes in my hand. "Unless—" I suggested.

"It will be years, if ever, before I can repay this loan."

"I never lend; I give," I told him.

He looked at me. I am no sentimentalist, but I tell you that I saw a soul cross from hell into heaven. But still he hesitated.

"You must know exactly the sort of person to whom you are making the gift," he said. I liked him because he made no pretense; he did not cringingly swear that it was a sacred obligation.

"Go on," I encouraged him.

"My name is Frank Tirrell. I'm a sort of confidential clerk for Phineas Garbon. He is a trader and speculator. The bulk of his operations have to do with jute, hemp and kapok. But he also takes flings in anything that comes along."

"I am his only employee. His office consists of one room on the ground floor of a dilapidated old building on West Broadway. He has no regular office hours. I know nearly as much of his affairs as he does. Also I have a key to his safe. In that safe he frequently keeps as much as fifty thousand dollars in cash. This is in order that he may not lose any bargain because of delay in getting his hands on the actual money needed to close a deal."

"He is a great gambler. He frequently tells me of the big poker-games in which he plays. He also bets heavily on the races. He is about sixty-five. He is thin and shabby. He is a bachelor. He is also the meanest man that ever lived."

"I was working, three years ago, for a ship-brokerage firm. Mr. Garbon did some business with us, apparently liked me, and asked me to work for him. He promised me that he would take me into partnership. Whenever I remind him of his promise, he evades the issue. Times are not too good. I have not been able to leave him."

"Several times I have been with him when he placed wagers on the races with a couple of handbook men named Harris and Poganni. Yesterday an acquaintance of mine gave me a tip on the races. He has given me many tips before, but I never played them. Always his tips have been correct. Today I asked Mr. Garbon when he was going to make good his promises to me. I have been engaged for two years to Rose Peters."

The girl touched his hand again, and I knew that she was his fiancée.

"Mr. Garbon laughed at me. He told me that if I didn't like my job I could quit. He left the office about ten, saying that he would not be back until morning. I suddenly went insane. That's all there is to say about it. I opened his safe, took out ten thousand dollars, and placed it, at five to one, with Harris and Poganni, on the horse that my friend had told me about yesterday. The horse finished fifth."

"That's all. Do you still want to give money to a thief?"

Now, if one judges Tirrell by his bald confession, one finds little extenuation. But I saw the girl. I knew how the broken promises of his employer must have galled the youth. And I am not one to say that an error makes a criminal. I handed him the twenty bills.

"Put it back in the safe, and all will be well," I told him.

He was too proud to break down, although his lips quivered. The girl put her hands before her eyes. I myself felt a lump in my throat. It was worth ten thousand dollars to gain the feeling of godlike benevolence that I possessed at that moment.

"What can I say?" asked Tirrell. "Nothing," I answered. "Only, for the sake of Miss Peters, who seems to be standing by you—"

The girl lowered her hands. "I told him that even if he went to jail," she said proudly, "I'd marry him."

"He won't go to jail," I assured her.

"And so help me God, I'll never do anything again that's wrong," vowed Tirrell.

I rose to leave, but the young man clutched at my hand. "I don't even know your name," he cried. "And besides, I want you to go with me to the office. I want you to see me put the money back in the safe."

He had restrained himself so long that a breakdown was near. I knew something about the nerves. I knew that to refuse his request might cause him to give way to the inclination to hysteria.

"My name doesn't matter. Some day, when you are rich, I shall look you up and ask repayment. Until then my identity is unimportant. And of course I will go with you to your office."

I stepped out of the alcove; I did not wish the girl to embarrass me with her gratitude. But as we put there upon the floor lay GARBON.

her into a taxicab to take her home, she threw her arms around my neck and kissed me. Had I earned with the sweat of my brow the money which I had just given to her lover, the kiss would have been worth every penny of it. I saw her go. I wondered if I would ever see her again. Then I shrugged. Why should I?

TIRRELL and I took another taxicab; we went down Broadway to the Post Office, and then left the cab, proceeding on foot to our destination. In front of the address whither we were bound, Tirrell stopped with a cry of amazement. He pointed a shivering finger at a window.

"There's a light in the office," he gasped.

"What of it?" I asked.

"Mr. Garbon must be there," he said.

"You may have left the light on, yourself," I suggested.

He shook his head decidedly. "He's in there. We'll have to tell him—perhaps he's opened the safe. Let's go in."

I seized his arm. "If he's there, you'll have to confess. You don't want to do that if you can avoid it."

DIXON GIRL MAKES GOOD ON UNUSUAL FARM AT BATAVIA

Miss Julia Clymer Part Owner of Chicken and Goat Farm Here.

The following story by Frank Ridgway in the Farm and Garden section of the Chicago Tribune, concerning Miss Julia Clymer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Clymer, 109 E. Chamberlain st., Dixon, will be of interest to many friends of the young lady:

East Of The Chimneys—Chicken, goat and dog farm near Batavia, Ill., is being successfully run by two former Chicago girls, who of tired of the hubbub, hurry to life of the "city of go." They traded their jobs of running the business end of a dramatic magazine for the task of gathering eggs, milking goats, and feeding whining pups, all for the purpose of making a living in the open.

The two girls, Miss Julia Clymer, former advertising manager, and Miss Estelle Snow, former circulation manager of the Drama Magazine bought the East-of-the-Chimneys farm of fifteen acres and took charge of it about a year and a half ago. They resigned their positions, donned a pair of overalls, and started out in a field quite foreign to them. In the managing the farm, and selling eggs, chickens, goats' milk and puppies they are enjoying the same business principles and salesmanship methods they used in adding new names to the magazine's list of subscribers and selling space to advertisers.

What Women Can Do.

They found what city people want to buy—eggs, milk, chickens and goats—and picked out animals that women could easily manage and care for. They have demonstrated to city and country girl that there are other ways for a woman to make a living besides running a typewriter, measuring ribbon, making hats, or dressing hair, mannequining, or operating a telephone switchboard.

On the farm in the Fox river valley half mile southeast of Batavia, the two girls do all of the work. Ten acres of the place are used to grow alfalfa, which furnishes range and pasture for goats and chickens. An orchard, grape arbor, vegetable garden and arm buildings cover the other five acres.

All their eggs are shipped to a special customers, who pay a premium price. The 660 layers kept on the place throughout the year average 225 dozen eggs a week, 205 dozens are sold to a candy store and two restaurants in Chicago. The other 20 dozen are sold to individuals.

Getting Premium Prices.

The three business firms pay a premium price of 5 cents a dozen above the highest price quoted in The Tribune each day. The buyers pay the transportation cost both ways, so that the price to the East-of-the-Chimneys is net. These eggs are shipped by express in thirty dozen cases at a cost of 48 cents a case from Batavia to Chicago, a distance of 52 miles.

Each individual customer from the place pays a premium of 10 cents above the highest quotation. This means the parcel post charges are 10 cents a dozen.

Through this direct method of selling, net profit of $2 a hen is made each year, or a total of $1,320 on the flock annually.

A definite system of management is followed by the girl managers. They do not attempt to incubate eggs of the farm. This year they bought 1,400 White Leghorn baby chicks at 25 cents each. All of them came from trap-nested flocks where the birds produce not less than 90 eggs each. Approximately 1,200 of the chicks were brought to the farm, the rest pullets.

A few days ago Miss Clymer said they had sold all of the cockerels, averaging 2 pounds each, at 26 cents a pound. By selling to a local dealer the owners believe they made more money than if they had shipped to Chicago, paid the transportation charges and stood the shrinkage, with the wholesale price around 30 cents a pound.

The pullets are all being kept; a few of them will be used as fryers.

S.S.S. keeps away Pimples

THERE are thousands of women who wonder why their complexions do not improve in spite of all the face treatments they use. They should not continue to wonder. Eruptions come from blood impurities and a lack of rich blood cells. S.S.S. is acknowledged to be one of the most powerful, rapid and effective blood cleansers known. S.S.S. builds new blood cells. This is why S.S.S. roots out of your system the impurities which cause blotches, pimples, blackheads, acne, blotches, eczema, tetter, rash. S.S.S. is a remarkable flesh-builder. That's why underweight people can quickly build up their lost flesh, get back their normal weight, pink, plump cheeks, bright eyes, and "pep."

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

and the usual 660 will be kept for winter layers to replace the old hens, which are not kept over the second winter at East-of-the-Chimneys.

"In June we begin culling," said Miss Clymer. "We have already culled our hens twice and sold the culs. All the rest of our layers—last year's pullets—will be sold by the middle of August, because we never keep hens more than one year. We get 18 cents a pound for hens, and they average 3 1/2 pounds.

The hens are kept in a tile poultry house, equipped with 132 nests, or one nest for every five birds. The layers enter the nests from the rear. When the eggs are gathered, the drawer like nests are pulled out in front.

Galvanized water fountains equipped with lamps so the water can be warmed in winter are kept in the poultry house.

The owners of East-of-the-Chimneys farm say the tile house is much warmer in the winter and cooler in summer, and is much more desirable than a house made of wood. Last winter when the temperature went down around 20 degrees below zero and frozen comb chickens were common all over the middle west, only two chickens suffered from frozen combs on this farm.

For Malnutrition Patients.

Fifteen pure bred Toggenburg milk goats are kept on the farm; seven are does giving from three to five quarts of milk a day. Twelve quarts are sold each day to the Kane County Tuberculosis sanitarium for 50 cents a quart bringing in more than $2,000 a year. The rest of the milk is used on the farm.

Most of the milk is fed to patients suffering from malnutrition, who are sent to the East-of-the-Chimneys farm by Chicago physicians. The are equipped to take care of six patients, who are fed goats' milk as the principle part of the diet prescribed by nutrition experts. A child and mother are charged $30 a week for this service, which includes the goats' milk.

Forest University, Lake Forest, Ill. Miss Clymer is a graduate of Lake Miss Snow of Simpson College, Burlington, Ala., and a former post-graduate student at the University of Chicago. She has had practical experience in farming at her father's ranch in New Mexico for six years, where she raised Duroc Jersey hogs, Rambouillet sheep, Jersey cattle and Airedale dogs and greyhounds. Her success as a ranch-woman in New Mexico encouraged her to try the unique and specialized idea of farming that she and Miss Clymer follow on their East-of-the-Chimneys farm.

Don't Lift Pots and Kettles Move the Burner!

Every New Method Range has the most little conveniences. For instance, the Swinging Simmering Burner and Lighter.

Note in illustration how it can be swung from one front burner to the other. No need of lifting pots to accommodate the position of the simmerer—a light touch swings the simmerer to where you want it. Acts also as a lighter—a wonderfully convenient attachment that comes with every New Method Range.

See our New Method Range display and learn all about the five outstanding patented features listed in the right hand column of this advertisement. And when you come in be sure to see the New Method Enameled Steel Burner. You know that all other burners are cast iron. The New Method Burner is vitreous enameled stamped steel and GUARANTEED FOR FIVE YEARS. Saves 20 percent to 40 percent on gas bills and is easy to keep clean. Be sure to see this burner.

These and other features not found on any other range are all yours if you own a New Method and not a single one costs you any more. Come in and let us show you.

NEW METHOD RANGES

REGULAR ARMY CAMP FOR BOYS AT FAIR SCHOOL

Camp to Be Under Personal Direction of General Black.

Springfield, Ill.—A model army camp, with sleeping tents, mess tents, lecture tents and kitchen tents will take care of the housing and feeding problems of approximately 300 boys who will attend the Boys' State Fair School here from September 13 to 19. The camp will be under the personal supervision of Adjutant General Carlos E. Black and a staff of army men.

Appointment of the number of boys who will attend the school will be by county population. Each of the 102 counties, with the exception of Cook, will be allowed two delegates. Other counties with a population of from 40 to 60 thousand will be allowed two extra delegates; and counties of from 60 to 100 thousand population will be allowed three extra delegates. Cook county will be allowed 15 delegates. A test, to be conducted by the county superintendent of schools, with assistants, will determine who shall attend the school.

Observation and study of the various classes of live stock, farm products, machinery and other displays at the State Fair will occupy much of the boy's time. Lectures will be given by agricultural instructors from the University of Illinois. Part of the day will be given over to inspection trips and visits to the Fair grounds.

Each Must Keep Record.

Each boy will be required to keep a record, in the form of a report, of each day's observation and instruction. The report thus made will be submitted to the home newspaper, and will be presented by the boy before his school and the County Farmers' Institute.

Counties which will be allowed two extra delegates are: Bureau, Champlain, DuPage, Fulton, Henry, Kane, Kane, Knox, Macoupin, and Montgomery. Counties receiving three extra delegates are: Adams, Kane, La Salle, Lake, McLean, Mason, Madison, Peoria, Rock Island, Sangamon, St. Clair, Vermilion, Will, Williamson, and Winnebago.

Awards of a gold medal and ten dollars in cash to both the city boy and the country boy for the best report of what was done at the school will be made a short time after the close of the school. Last year's winners were Francis E. Scott, Pleasant Plains and Wallace H. Ward, Macoupin.

There are 9000 cells in a square foot of honeycomb.

Thirty thousand cubic feet of air weighs approximately one ton.
